Joe Enoch Wins Election As 86% Of Frosh Vote

On Wednesday, November 23, the Freshman Class elected officers for the academic year, 1960-61. Joe Enoch was elected president and Chuck Lancelotta vice-president by overwhelming majorities. Percentage-wise, 86.5% of the freshmen voted in the election, making this one of the largest turnouts for any freshman election in the school's history.

Both Enoch and Lancelotta received at least fifty votes more than their closest opponent. Other officers elected were Richard Lawrence, Student Council Representative; Buzz Dietz, Treasurer; and Relmond Van Daniker, Secretary.

Spirited Campaign

The campaign was generally considered to be the most spirited in the history of the college. Thirty-six petitions were submitted; twenty-one were allowed, a very large number of candidates in comparison with recent elections. Besides the six independent candidates, three tickets were formed, a first in freshman elections.

Margins of Victory

Enoch defeated his closest opponent, Thad Minninger, 117-54. Bill Butler and Paul Montgomery, the other candidates for the presidency, each won only 12% of the total vote. Lancelotta garnered 52% of the vote for V.P., while Pete Gomsak took 30%. Lawrence, although receiving only 31% of the vote for S.C. Rep., easily won that position, the other five candidates each taking over 10%. The closest race was that of treasurer, with Dietz defeating Dennis Voith, 75-70.

Election Committee

The election was supervised by a special committee consisting of John Baynes, chairman, John Jordan, Ed Slawski, and Tom Annullis.

'The Male Animal' Plays Tonight, Tomorrow Night

Tonight and tomorrow night the Dramatic Society will present "The Male Animal" by James Thurber and Elliot Nugent. The price of admission will be $1.25 stag or drag. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. The play will be presented in Cohn Hall.

Ed Slawski, Ed Connery, and Thad Minninger will be cast in the male lead roles. Senior Dennis Smyth will do the directing. Soph Marty Snyder has designed the sets.

Bright-eyed Blond

Miss Carol Goode, a bright-eyed, blondish, senior drama major, has returned to Evergreen to trod the boards as Ellen Turner, the female lead. Miss Goode will be remembered as Cecily Cardew in the "Importance of Being Earnest." She has also appeared in the recent plays at Carol Goode N.C.M., "The Late Christopher Bean" and last year's, "Lady Precious Stream."

Miss Ann Tracy, a slim, brown-haired junior drama major, makes her debut on the Loyola stage, as Ellen's sister Patricia. Her piercing wit and slender sophistication add a demure tone to the whole production. Ann, also, appeared in "Precious Stream" and "The Late Christopher Bean" at Notre Dame.

Besides these, the Loyola players are also fortunate to have in minor roles two other talented Notre Dame seniors, Ann Donovan and Kathy McCrane. All four of these girls, besides being attractive, are very talented and will add professional polish to the production.

Still in High School

Mention must also be made of

Miss Julie Platz, a senior at the Institute of Notre Dame. This young lady, though still in high school, has a great deal of experience and Ann Tracy projects a competent character in the role of Cleota, the negro maid at the Turner residence.

Student Production

Father John J. Scanlan, faculty moderator of the Dramatic Society has this to say about the play: "This is a student production and John Synodinos (director) and myself are leaving everything up to the students. From what we have observed, Dennis is doing an excellent job and we expect a fine performance."

The Dramatic Society deserves your support. Be in attendance.

Doctor Jules Davids To Speak Thursday

On Thursday, December 8 at 8:15 p.m., the John Gilmary Shea History Academy will present Dr. Jules Davids, guest lecturer, in the Student Lounge. For his talk, Dr. Davids will speak on "American Diplomacy Since World War II: A Cold War Balance Sheet." Special concentration will be made on the key problems in American-Soviet relations.

Born in Brooklyn

Dr. Davids was born in Brooklyn, New York, and graduated from Brooklyn College in 1942. Completing his graduate studies at Georgetown University, he received his Ph. D. in 1947. He joined the faculty at Georgetown in 1946 and is at present professor of American history both in the Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service and the Graduate School.

Kennedy Adviser

During 1955, Dr. Davids assisted Senator John F. Kennedy as a consultant historian in the preparation of the Pulitzer Prize winning "Profiles In Courage," and contributed materially to several chapters. Dr. Davids is an author in his own right, and is writing a new book.

Advise And Consent

It was a very small funeral. No one really wanted to go to it. For years, they had said, or at least hoped, that it would never happen; but the fact was, it did happen. Someone in the group of mourners took time out to jot down part of the eulogy. It went like this:

"Histroy, no doubt, will give place, proportion, and setting to the struggle of school spirit at Loyola College. It was once one of the moral and spiritual treasures of the campus... We fear and feel we shall not look upon its like again."

Now no one really believes that this stroy could ever happen. The majority of students feel that school spirit is at an all-time high. Yet these same students will admit that Mr. "Spirit" has one foot in the grave already. However, there is still hope, and prompt action is the only course to be taken at this point.

We suggest surgery.

For a number of years now, Loyolans have been discussing various remedies to this important problem. The main complaint to date is that everybody talks about it and does nothing. We feel that no one has come up with the correct solution, but we would like now to offer a number of suggestions, some old and some new.

To begin with, we must bear in mind that we chose Loyola College; Loyola did not choose us. Whether we realize it or not, we have incurred certain responsibilities as a result of our choice. We will not concern ourselves with our responsibilities as college students ipso facto, but with those duties of Loyola men to themselves and to one another.

In the first place, recall to mind the old cliché: You get out of college only what you yourself put into it! Every one of us had a choice to make in the beginning of our freshman year. On the one hand, we could join the nine o'clock to three o'clock club. Members of this club are eligible to join the library fraternity, the College football team, and H.F.C. (Home and Fast Club). On the other hand, we could become not only students but members of Loyola College. College membership entitles one to join the extracurricular activities of his choice (some twenty-five in all). In addition, the member becomes part of a class, has the right to run for office, and can try out for a position on one of the athletic teams. A student in the first group is the worst publicity the College can have; a student in the second is the best possible salesman.

Which group did you choose?

The Greyhound Salutes Bob Goldsmith

Chem Major

Bob Goldsmith is majoring in Chemistry. During the Summer, he did analytical and research work

Bob Goldsmith

"Loyola College has the best spirit of any day-hopschool in Maryland. But to make a really great school here at Evergreen, we need dorms," suggested senior Bob Goldsmith the other day.

Bob may be an optimist, and there are many who would promptly disagree with him; but if the spirit of the students at Evergreen isn't always what it should be, we might profitably take a cue from this active and hardworking senior.

Activities

Bob Goldsmith's four years at Loyola have been marked by outstanding scholastic achievements, as well as active participation in many extracurricular activities. Senior year finds Bob secretary of his class; President of TKA, the honorary debating fraternity; and V.P. of the Bellarmine debating society. In addition to his multi-fold executive duties, he is a member of the Chem club and A.S.O.

This Fall, together with twelve of his classmates, Bob was elected to "Who's Who," a reward well deserved. The greatest honor, however, came last Spring when Bob was made a member of ASN, the national Jesuit honor fraternity.

for the W.R. Grace Company. Following graduation, Bob plans to go to graduate school, where he hopes to specialize in organic chemistry—that is, if he can manage to stall the preacher for a while!

Friendliness, enthusiasm, and hard work are synonymous with Bob. As representing the type of spirit Loyola wishes to instill in all its students, the Greyhound is proud to salute senior Bob Goldsmith.

the Watchdog

To bear up bravely under the loss of a loved one is perhaps the most difficult measure of a man. Death, in all its ugliness, must be accepted as part of our heritage; it must be faced squarely and with courage. Man does not stop with a loss of one he loves, but pays his homage and goes on. Let this then, be our homage to one we all loved. He was not a great man, perhaps because his passing was so untimely, but to us he was great. His easy laugh made many difficult tasks easier. His friendly co-operation set an example to many. His humbleness, in a setting of all too frequent greed and ambition, saved many an otherwise cynical man. We will all miss him. But more than that, we will miss the things he stood for. We will honor him in imitation, for his memory will guide our every act. To achieve his degree of integrity and charity toward our fellow man will be an ambition to which we will all aspire. Good-bye dear friend. Good-bye Yogi Bear.

Once again Loyola Nite was a success. Opening with the Glee Club and ending with Dennis Smyth, the time in between was packed with talent. We know it was a success since some of the, shall we say, more critical comedians were seen re-registering, after paying their illegal humor fines.

Everyone enjoyed the holidays. Some spent the time partying while others tried in vain to satisfy their unquenchable thirst for knowledge. Dick Prodey has a sore hand from writing notes of apology. Don't worry Dick, we're all with you. (Confidentially of course.)

John Feller received a letter from the White House this morning. Its three paragraphs, summed up briefly, said no. Who told them you backed Kennedy, John?

The soccer team had a party recently. Eleven pounds of ham, ten pounds of shrimp, and a quarter keg were consumed. This is rather significant when you realize only nine couples showed up.

No drill this week. Instead they had a county fair. And they bug us about defining our terms. The only connection between this and a fair is that prizes, in the form of marks, are given. Only, in this fair the animals do the awarding.

This should be a fun-packed weekend. Rumor has it that there is a swinging dance to-night. Tomorrow night there is a basketball game. But whatever you decide to do, don't miss the play, "The Male Animal", tonight or tomorrow night.

Glee Club Schedules Christmas Appearance

The Loyola College Glee Club is presently planning and rehearsing for the annual wintertime schedule of concerts and public appearances. Again this year, the schedule is headed by the Winter Concert, set for Sunday, December 11, and an appearance on a nationwide radio hookup, which has been listed for Saturday, December 24.

As is the usual procedure, the Club will travel to several of the local hospitals and entertain the patients with various Christmas renditions, both popular and traditional carols.

Winter Highlight

Set for Sunday, Dec. 11, is the annual Christmas Concert, to be presented this year in conjunction with the Glee Club of Dunbarton College in Washington, D.C. The concert will be held in the Evergreen Chapel at 4 p.m.

A repeat performance has been proposed for Wed., December 14, at Dunbarton.

The officers this year include Bob Wright, president; Joe Baginski, vice president, and Steve Pretl, the treasurer.

New York Trip

A bus trip will be sponsored by Loyola College for the basketball games which are to be held at New York's Adelphi and Hofstra Colleges on December 9 and 10. The response thus far hasn't been what it was anticipated when the trip was first announced.

Only twenty dollars will pay for the two-day stay, transportation, tickets and food. Only 12 of at least 30 men, who will be needed, have signed up.

It seems to those of us on the Greyhound staff that students should be glad to get away from the dull life for a weekend of basketball and sightseeing.

City Life

By Pete Genovese

Last Friday night, the Kingston Trio performed before an estimated 7,000 people at the Fifth Regiment Armory. This reporter, with the aid of a big mouth and a press card, managed to meet the trio as well as its arranger, "Buck" Wheat.

Happy To Play

Through disgruntled over the bad acoustics in the building, the unofficial press agent of the group, Nick Reynolds, seemed happy to play for the enthusiastic crowd. He remarked that not even the multi-thousand dollar sound equipment helped.

Film For Perry Como

Today, the trio will film parts for the Perry Como show and later leave for California to film for 7-Up. Next, they'll tour New Zealand and Japan.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

By PETE COOK

Ass't Sports Editor

With the departure of Paul Sherman and Stack Burton one might think that the Hounds' cross-country coach Bill McElroy would have a long time to wait before seeing another runner of their caliber. Such was not the case however. Bill only had to look forward to this season for he knew that Rick Frampton would grace the Evergreen campus.

Outstanding Season

To say the least, Frampton has fulfilled every dream that McElroy could hope for. He won eight dual meets during the past season and capped this performance with a first in the Mason-Dixon Conference championships. Every time Rick ran he broke a course record. He set the Mason-Dixon championship record and the Loyola course record. Coach McElroy understates that Rick is "the best thing that every happened to cross-country at Loyola."

If Sherman has a grudge against Rapid Rick it is a justified one. Paul himself played an important part in bringing Rick to Loyola, and upon his arrival the freshman harrier promptly went out and broke Sherman's Loyola course record set in 1959.

Late Starter

Frampton didn't start running cross-country until his junior year at Poly and then he was only a member of the junior varsity. During the following summer, however, Rick worked out in Druid Hill Park every day and the following year he blossomed into the M.S.A. champion.

In expressing his enthusiasm for the sport, Rick states that he just "likes the competition." He doesn't limit his running just at school, for Rick is a member of the Baltimore Cross Country Club. It was there that Mr. Sherman welded his influence to send his buddy here. Loyola College will never regret it.

Harriers Fifth Frampton First In M-D Final

Loyola's crosscountry team completed their season last Saturday on a somewhat cheery note. They placed fifth in the Mason-Dixon finals out of a field of ten. Bridge water was first with a team total of 55, Lynchburg second with 88 points, Hopkins and American University tied for third with 98 points, and Loyola fifth with 105 points. The defending champions of Roanoke College were sixth, Gallaudet seventh, Towson State Teachers eighth, Mount Saint Mary's ninth and Catholic University in tenth position.

Loyola was again paced by Rick Frampton who set another record, finishing six seconds in front of Don Smilovitz of Hopkins in the record breaking time of fifteen minutes and twenty-eight and a fraction seconds.

Denny Voith was tenth for the "Hounds," Lew Smith seventeenth, Billy Jenkins thirty-first, Bucky McCarthy fiftieth, with Tom Kenney not much further behind in the field of seventy-one runners.

Aside from the new record holder, the team has given us much to make us proud of them. The finals were run by a Hound team which showed great improvement from the one which opened the season for us as they finished the season with a great team effort.

Though it seems ironic, the team was actually better in this year's finals than in last year's. This might seem like an unusual statement to make since Loyola was in third place last year. However, the team score of this year was actually four points lower than last year's score of 109. This is an indication that the conference is becoming stronger than ever.

In final summation, the team had a fair year having a three and four dual meet record as well as a third place finish in the Invitational and a fifth place finish in the finals. The most important thing is that they were always in there trying and are leaving a lot of hope for the future.

Western Md. Here Tuesday In Opener

By Darrell Russell

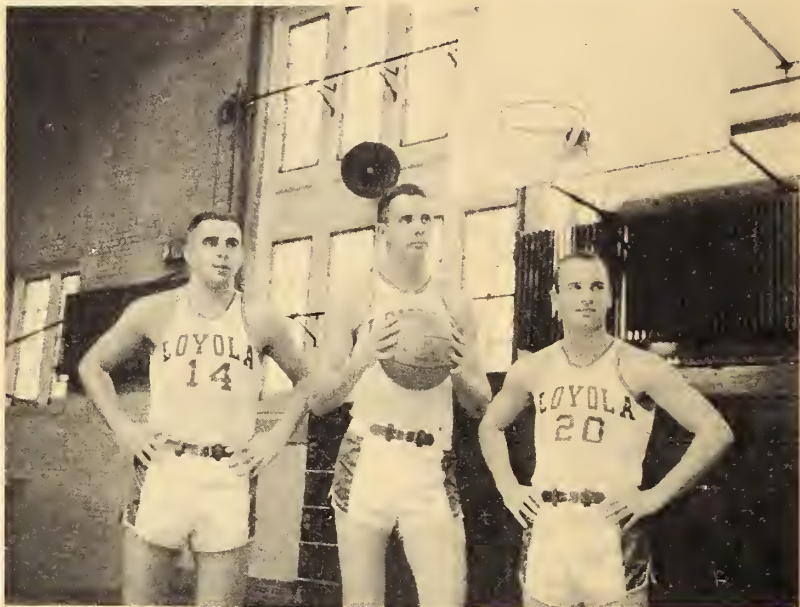

Next Tuesday at 8:15 here at Evergreen, the 1960 edition of the Hound basketball team makes its league debut against Western Maryland. Preseason reports indicate the Terrors are the most improved team in the Mason-Dixon circuit.

Loyola was a 98-80 winner in last year's fray. However, the Greyhounds, while looking for an improved five over last year's team, are still trying to fill the shoes of graduated Mike Sneeringer and Joe O'Hara. It seems that this will most easily be done by aggressiveness and team play for there is a definite lack of height.

Therefore, all the loyal attending will be treated to what should be an interesting contest. Lefty and Nappy remind all to pick up their free season books in the athletic office. There are still many left.

Tomorrow night, Loyola travels to Georgetown for its second non-league affair. The Hounds played Seton Hall yesterday in their opener. Anyone venturing to D.C. tomorrow night will be treated by seeing the amazing Puddy Sheen lead the Hoyas' quint against us.

The starting five, at this mement appears to be John Heagney, Ed Murn, Goerge Yurek, Dave Carney, and Tony Torba or Phil Potter.

Loyola's senior B-Ball players, (l. to r.) John Heagney, Ed Murn, and 'Bird' Carney, as they prepare for the season.

Hound Grapplers To Feature Vets, Youth

With the wrestling season scheduled to begin after the Christmas Holidays, coach Dick Clem has his men working full time in hopes of an outstanding year.

Returning Vets

Veterans returning to the squad this year include Charles Carey, Charles Graham, Mike Buchness and Tom Kneavel. In comparison to the aggressiveness of the other veterans, Buchness, up to this point, hasn't displayed the viciousness essential in a top notch wrestler. With a bit of the "killer" instinct, Mike could prove to be one of the best.

Freshman prospects trying to break into the regular lineup include Schaeffer, Al Schaff, and Tom Miligan from Loyola, St. Joe and Southern respectively. The newcomers possess a lot of wrestling savvy and do not seem to fear the experienced vets. All men will have to be on their toes in order to make the squad this coming season.

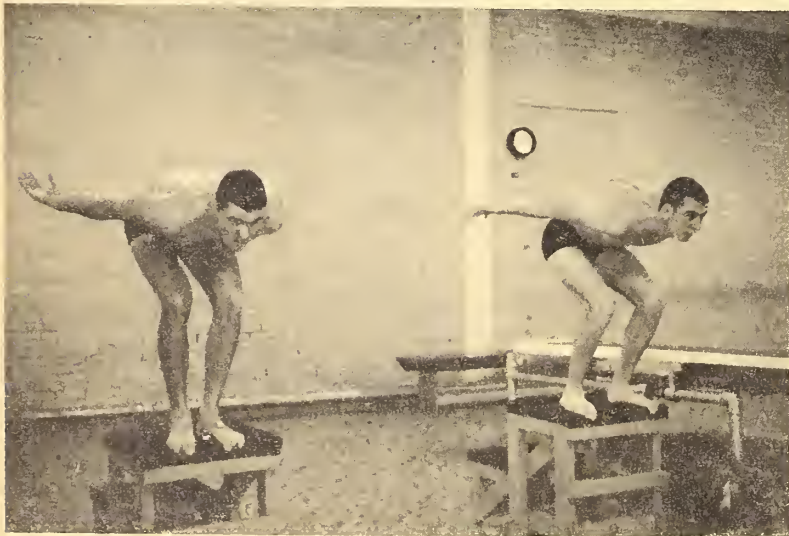

Last week the wrestling team suffered a big loss when Tom Iampieri, one of last year's outstanding grapplers, was injured in an automobile accident. Tom had the most pins of anybody else on the squad last year.

Natators Prep For 1st Meet Against Rams

Last night at 7:30, Loyola swimmers competed in their annual Green and Grey Meet. This is an intra-squad contest in which the high scorers of last year joined with some of the all-time great alumni to swim against the rest of the team.

Good Indication

The Hounds open their season against Fordham University next Friday. Last year the Hounds trounced the Rams 62-33 to begin their season in fine fashion.

Two of the Swimming Team's star performers, Jerry Preis (l.) and Lou Smith, pose prettily for a picture in practice.
